

Michael Riedlinger

High Tech Rochester—Rochester, NY
Launchpad Program Manager

“High Tech Rochester—Programs and Resources for People Who Want to Change the World”

October 15, 2014
3:25 p.m.
202 Gavett Hall

This talk is about the possibilities and resources available through High Tech Rochester and through programs offered along with the University of Rochester. HTR supports the formation and development of new ventures that are technology-based with an emphasis on creating scalable ventures that build our local economy. The organization also provides many opportunities for community members to assist in the development and commercialization of technology, even if they are not interested in being entrepreneurs themselves. While most of these programs are centered about Rochester, some have impacts state-wide and internationally. All of them provide an opportunity to meet other creative people that share interests in technology, new ventures, and improving our community.